

AWS Marketing Authorization and Release

I, individually and on behalf of my Company (if any), (together referred to as “we,” “us,” and “our”) hereby authorize and grant Amazon Web Services, Inc., its affiliates, and their assignees, and authorized operators of Amazon Web Services branded services (collectively, "AWS") a royalty-free, nonexclusive, worldwide license to reproduce, publish, distribute, and translate all or any part of the Materials (i) on websites operated by AWS; (ii) on social media, including the AWS video repository on www.YouTube.com; and (iii) in customer lists, presentations, and other marketing collateral. “Materials” means (a) our written or recorded testimonial or case study about AWS services; and (b) our names and logos used for the purpose of identifying us as a customer or end user of AWS.

AWS must get our consent (which may be via email) prior to using any of the Materials other than as described above. AWS will not make any modifications to the Materials that substantially change the content or meaning of the Materials without providing us the opportunity to review and approve the final form of the modifications.

We represent and warrant that (i) the Materials are true and accurate to the best of our knowledge; (ii) we have the necessary rights and permissions to grant the license herein, including to the likeness of any of our representatives featured in the Materials; and (iii) the Materials do not violate or infringe any copyright, trademark, or other proprietary rights of any person or entity. We acknowledge that neither we nor any of our representatives featured in the Materials have received anything of pecuniary value from AWS in exchange for making the Materials.

We may request AWS discontinue future use of the Materials by emailing AWS at aws-reference-requests@amazon.com (or such other email address as AWS directs), provided that AWS will not be required to remove the Materials from any pre-printed materials or digital marketing collateral.
